Remained in the Jewel Box-Miss Yohe Charges Capt, Strong with Theft of Jewels.

New York July 22-(Bulletin)-The police have today hunted high and low for Capt. Bradles Strong but have found no trace of him nor do they know what he did with the $200,000 worth of jewels belonging co May Yohe.

New York, July 22-A formal complaint of grand larceny was made against former Captain Putman Bradice Strong last evening by Miss Yohe who visited police headquarters, ac companied by her mother and har lawyer, and there charged Strong who recently disappeared from her home, at Hasting, with the theft of jewels which she values at $250,000 Her complaint was entertained and a general alarm was sent out for the arrest of Strong.

Miss Yohe's counsel said that the safe in the Knickerbocker Safe Deposit Company where Miss Yoke had kept her jewels was opened and v was found that her jewels, valued a $250,000 had been removed nothing of value being left in the safe excep a few trifling trinkets.

He also explained that pawn tick ets, calling for $100,000 worth of the missing gems, had been recovered. May Yohe and her attorney, Eman

Astonishing Marital Careers as Related by One-Girls All Lived in the Buckeye State

Toledo, Ohio, July 22-Mrs. Harvey R. Davis, of Waseca, Wis., who is visting friends in this city, says that she is one of a family of six sisters, all of whom have secured divorces from their husbands. Mrs. Davis says the family name of the six sisters prior to marriage was Bowen, and that they were all born and raised on a farm near Larue, this state, and all received a good country school education. In speaking of herself and sisters, Mrs. Davis said: "Our circumstances on the farm were fairly good. We were to a great degree permitted to have our own way. Beaux we all had in abundance, and we have all married and been divorced, two of us twice. My sister Mary married when 16 a conductor on the Erie railroad. They were divorced and she married a farmer named Horton, but she was livorced a second time, and is marired again and living happily at Delaven,

"There I married a handsome but useless man, and it was starve or divorce, and I chose divorce. I then married Harvey Davis and am happy.

"Sister Degmar married a minister first, but as he was lazy and useless she left him and he got a divorce. Then she married again and was again divorced. Now she is married to a Baptist minister named Harvell, of Sturgis, Mich., but now of Oregon, and both are happy.

"Sister Edith married a schoolteacher at Piqua, who had a wife living in Missouri. Edith got a divorce, but is still unmarried, but expects to be married soon. Then sister Eva, our baby narried a farmer named Horace Martin, of Delaware county, Ohio. They were divorced, and now she is married o Henry Pemberton, of Titusville, Pa., and is happy. Sister Marion was Why divorced from her first husband and ast week she was married to Charles Donbridge, a vessel captain, of Dun-

HIS HAT

Worn in Court and a Mail Carrier was Fined-He Appealed to Washington.

Bozeman, Mont., July 22-While District Court was in session yesterday Leiter Carrier R. Fransham went into the courtroom with his hat on. He was told to remove it by Judge Holloway and did so. As he was going out of the court room he put his hat on again, whereupon Judge Holloway called him back, fined him $10 nad ordered him under arerst until the fine was paid.

The cerrier was obliged to go back to the postoffice to get the money before he could proceed with his business of delivering letters. The incident has caused a great deal of comment in the city, as the carrier is said to have had his hands full of mail matter and was in the discharge of his duty.

The matter is being referred to the department at Washington for the purpose of ascertaining whether a letter carrier is subservient to a District Court and can be arrested and fined when in the legal discharge of his duties.

FALSE PRETENSES

GOT NO RECOGNITION AT LAST NIGHT'S SESSION OF THE COUNCIL

Not a Word Was Uttered to Show That There Was Any Issue in Existence About the Sunday

Orginance.

The Council proceedings last nigh: demonstrated the fact clearer than ev er that the American-Tribune's pre oak." tended issue about Sunday closing has no existence whatsoever. Not a word was broached about such an issue by a single member of the Council, either Republican or Democrat. Not ever a word about it came from the Mayor in what he said pertaining to police men. There was a renewal of the contention over the political division of the police force that has all along existed between the parties, which is nothing new in Newark. In all New ark's history, where the policical ma jority in the council differed from the Mayor, there has been the same con tention over city appointments that exists now. And the same is true o' every city in the state. Both polit ical parties contend for control of the appointments.

In Newark the council has always maintained its political rights in the confirmation of appointments for the police force, fire department and ev ery other branch of the city govern ment. Republican majorities in the Council have always contended for this right the same as Democratic majorities, and Democratic Mayors as well as Republican Mayors have had to concede this right. Hence there is nothing new in the present dispute. The present majority is simply con tending for the same right that the Council has always maintained.

The significant feature of last night's council session, was that from all that was said or done throughout all the proceedings, no eye witness could have imagined for a moment that there had been any discussion over the Sunday ordinances, all of which unmistakably demonstrated what little consideration was given to the howl the A.-T. has been making over this matter.

In short, the false issue the A.-T. has been raising was wholly ignored by every member of the Council present. All of which shows the good sense, the respect for decent frankness and the disapproval of false pretenses on the part of every member present, regardless of politics.

PILGRIM JOE'S LUCK

HE REACHES RED HOT AND MAKES THINGS LIVELY.

After Doing a Very Profitable Business In Tlutypes the Pilgrim Accepts a Challenge and Wins a Big Pot of Money.

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.] N the outskirts of the thrivin' I was met by the mayor on hossback, and as he bid me welcome he added:

"Virtue is a beacon fire set on a high hiil," says he.

"And the man without guile sleepeth like a babe and fears no evil," says I.

Then he slaps me on the back and calls me an old cuss, and we sought and exhilarated on sarsaparilla. When out the nearest place of exhilaration it became known to the citizens of Red Hot that I was takin' tintypes at 10 cents a take, they sat down before me in dozens and scores, and I had a rush of business for three days. Among the last to appear was a woman who was strivin' to forget that her husband had been assisted to die four weeks previously by a band of enterprisin' citizens. He was found with the goods on him-that is, he was still ridin' the stolen boss. She was a woman with a double chin, and her weight was 200 pounds. As she sat for her tintype her eyes rolled, her bosom heaved, and humped up her shoulders. I tried to dodge it, but I was too late.

"Hast thou no one to love thee?" she liquidly inquired as she raised her azure orbs to mine.

"Nay," I said, "and I do not wish to be loved. Let me have the respect of the world for my integrity, and I am

"To such a man as thee I could cling as the tender vine clings to the sturdy

"But I am not in the sturdy oak business. My mission is to comfort the sorrerful, cheer the discouraged and lift up the fallen. As a sort of side issue I run a tintype outfit, keep a fightin' dog and enter my old hoss in half mile races."

"But your benign countenance and fatherly tenderness have captured my heart," she insists. And she rises up and throws herself into my arms and bids me take her and be happy.

I dodged, and she fell to earth and rolled over, and when she arose she was a woman scorned. Her love for me had fled away, and my venerable whiskers would have been in her grasp had I not spread my wings and soared away. She demanded the sum of $2 for her blighted affections, and rather than have her tip over my wagon and characterize me as a man with a heart of stone I paid it, and she retired with the light of triumph in her eyes. I was sayin' to myself that a clear conscience needed no lantern on a dark night when a sinful lookin' critter with the lust of avarice on his countenance came along and looked at my dog and "I have a canine myself, and occasionally, that his heart may be made lovous, I turn him loose.'

"It is thus also with me," I says, "but I am allus ready to back up his joyousness with a ten dollar bill."

"I have long looked for thee. I will also back the joyousness of my canine, and we will bring the two together and let's say $20."

"I seek not riches," says I as I turns my head away, "but humility must be fed and clothed as well as luxury. I'll therefore raise the ante and call it an even $25."

At which the man with the sinful countenance was greatly rejoiced and went away to prepare for business. That afternoon on the public square and in the presence of an interested populace the canines were brought torether and allowed to disport. The humble and peaceful demeanor of my dog while waitin' for the conflict to begin caused many eminent citizens to and without undue ostentation kivered their money. The disportin' lasted about a quarter of an hour, and there | treated in the same way." was no uncertainness about the other dog bein' licked. His ambition was checked and his pride laid low, and when I counted up I found myself $$5 ahead of the game. Thus doth integrity reward itself and virtue stand forth triumphant. Our emotions kept us silent for a minit or two, and then the venerable but deceivin' old critter turns on me

"Pilgrim, is that old hoss of yours on the simble?

"He can do a purty fair amble for half a mile with me on his back."

"For how much cash?" "Anywhere from $10 to $50."

"I, too, have a boss," he sighs, "and he is on the amble. While he ambles for money, the cash is used to make the world better."

"'Tis so in my case," I says, "and let us hasten to the struggle. While we daily here the widder sorrers and the orphan wanders wailin'."

Ag'in the populace of Red Hot turned out in their enthusiasm, and ag'in there was a number of them who erred in judgment when they sized my old hoss up for a stationary engine. It was only when I had climbed up on his back and tures. we had got the word to go that he stretched out a pair of hind legs which up the sile like a plow run by steam. I he might do something to make him jumped him seventeen feet at every yell, | interested in the little animals he liked and the dun colored hoss of him who to destroy. would have robbed me was left ten rods behind at the wire. As the settin' sun got ready to set and the lark was callin' to his mate I | I've seen millions of them." climbed on to my wagon and pursued my way. There was boodle in my ever look at one closely?" pockets and a calm heart, and while the hoss flies took a last bite and the dew descended to moisten my whiskers I hummed softly to myself and realized that it was good to be there.

AN UNCONCIOUS SERMON.

The Boy Who Wouldn't Be Paid For Performing a Kind Act.

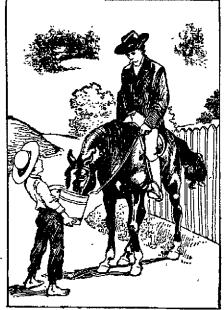

Mr. Harvey was riding slowly along the dusty road, looking in all directions ing animals and taking the life of for a stream or even a house where he might refresh his tired, thirsty horse with a good draft of water. While he was thinking and wondering he turned an abrupt bend in the road seemed to be 'leven feet long and tore heartless deeds, and he often wished and saw before him a comfortable looking farmhouse, and at the same time a boy ten or twelve years old came out into the road with a small pail and stood directly before him.

"What do you wish, my boy?" said Mr. Harvey, stopping his horse.

"Would your horse like a drink, sir?"

said the boy respectfully. "Indeed he would, and I was won dering where I could obtain it."

Mr. Harvey thought little of it, supposing, of course, the boy earned a few

"INDEED, SIR, I DON'T WANT IT." pennies in this manner, and therefore he offered him a bit of silver and was astonished to see him refuse it.

"I would like you to take it," he said. looking earnestly at the child and ob serving for the first time that he limped slightly.

"Indeed, sir, I don't want it. It is little enough I can do for myself or any one. I am lame, and my back is bad, sir, and mother says no matter how small a favor may seem, if it is all we are capable of, God loves it as much as he does a very large favor. and this is the most I can do for oth ers. You see, the distance from Paines ville is eight miles to this spot, and I happen to know there is no stream crossing the road that distance and the houses are all some distance from the road, and so almost every one passing here from that place is sure to have a thirsty horse."

Mr. Harvey looked down into the gray eyes that were kindling and glowing with the thought of doing good to others, and a moisture gathered in his own as a moment later he jogged off, pondering deeply upon the quaint little sermon that had been delivered so innocently and unexpectedly.

Learn How to Breathe.

It is possible to exercise one's whole body to keep it strong and well simply by breathing properly. Children should be taught to breathe and to get into the habit of filling the whole lung space at each inhalation and of emptying it completely at each exhalation. There is no better way of getting to sleep soon after going to bed than by breathing properly. Push away the pillow and lie flat upon the back with the muscles relaxed. Slowly draw in the deepest breath possible, hold it for four seconds, then slowly expel it until the chest and abdomen have collapsed. Reneat this until you are tired or fall asleep. There are scores of ways of varying this exercise, but this is the essential one. Of course it is assumed that one sleeps with his bedroom windows open.

To a Butterfly. Oh, butterfly, with beauteous wing, Just come here, you pretty thing: I want to see your colors bold And count those stripes of richest gold; The little dots or sparks so bright That shine like stars in darkest night; The scallops of embroidered warp Which make your wings a wondrous maze. Come, let me see each tiny eye!

I wonder if you ever cry! Listen, little wandering child:

I cannot speak with words thus mild, But there's a way for you to know The nature of my life's bright glew. My covering is the thinnest veil Of powder soft, a cloak most frail; softest touch will take away That which protects my life each day. May I not suffer while I die, And there be teardrops in each eye? -Margaret Morley Stuart.

"Sit" and "Set." Some one who believes in teaching by example has concocted a lesson in the use of two little words which have been a source of mortification and trouble to many well meaning persons. A man or woman either can set a hen, although they cannot sit her; nelther can they set on her, although the hen might sit on them by the hour if they would allow it.

A man cannot set on the wash bench, but he could set the basin on it, and neither the basin nor the grammarians would object.

He could sit on the dog's tail if the dog were willing or he might set his aforesaid tail or sit his foot there the grammarians as well as the dog would howl, metaphorically at least. And yet the man might set the tail aside and then sit down and be assailed neither by the dog nor by the grammarians.

They were two fishermen coming in vith their morning's catch. A lot of he shining, flapping fish lay in the ottom of the boat.

"Hello, beauties!" called Ben as he bserved the children. "Oh, didn't you get a lot!" said Jean,

"Good haul," answered Ben. The men began to throw the fish out in the beach, where the children examned them.

"You'll be rich this time, won't on?" asked Ted soberly. "Rich as mud," laughed Ben.

Ted thought a moment, then whispered something to Jean. "Goody!" cried Jean. The children went close up to Ben.

"Won't you sell my fish, too?" asked "Your fish! Which one is that, ba-

Jean held out her cup. "I caught it ovself" she said proudly.

Ben peeped in; then he laughed, but eeing Ted's sober face he took the cup. and, going up to his partner, he gave im a resounding whack upon his back nd showed him the cup.

"The babies want us to sell their ish when we sell ours," he said, winkng at John. "Bless the young uns!" cried John.

'And what would you do with the ooney?" he asked the children. Jean and Ted drew apart and whisered together. "We'd buy a boat," said they at last.

"Like our'n?" asked John. Ted shook his head. "One we could sail with a string." "We were going to put it in a glass and let it grow," explained Jean. Wouldn't we get more money if it vas bigger?" "I guess I'd sell it now, baby," answered Ben. "Sompin might happen "All right. They are hard to catch," lean replied resignedly.

The men got ready their load of fish. "Come here tomorrow morning and get your money," John said, and the wo men went toward town with their ourden, chuckling and nudging each

"No, a pony," said Jean.

"Bor," said Ted.

"All right," replied Jean; but, alhough they scooped patiently for ong time, not a minnow rewarded

At last they sat down by the boat and played in their beloved sand. "When I grow up," remarked Ted, Tim going to be a fisherman and get

"They are not tich," answered Jean. "Why?" asked Ted. "Well," answered Jean after some pondering, "I s'pose 'cause they don't ish all day.' The next morning when they went to the beach the empty boat of the fishermen greeted their eyes. "Praps they left our money in the boat," suggested Jean. So they scrambled in to examine. In the stern of the boat under the seat was a little locker. Ted made his way to it and, sitting on the floor, began to pull and jerk at the handle. It flew open, and Ted yelled:

"The boat, Jean, the boat!" Jean scrambled over.

Now, the boat had not been drawn entirely out of the water, and the tide was coming in, so the weight and movements of the two children slipped it into the wave, and almost imperceptibly it floated toward deep water.

Ted tremblingly drew a little sailboat, with white sail all set, out from its hiding place. A long stout twine trailed after it. Both children were speechless for a moment. Ted climbed up on the seat and dropped the boat into the water. Jean clutched the end of the string and climbed after. With its little sail proudly upright the toy went floating out, and slowly after it. as if being towed by the proud little sailor, moved the big, hulking fishing

In a short time Ben and John returned. They had hurried their morning's work to participate in the children's pleasure. "Where's the hout?" asked Ben just as John exclaimed, "Land of Moses!" which exclamation was followed by found. his throwing off his coat and ridding himself of his shoes. Ben grasped the situation and turned toward the cottage facing the shore. "I'll go quiet their folks," he said. At this same instant the maid, whose duty it was to keep the children in sight from the house, returned to the front from an errand she had made to the kitchen, where she had remained talking longer than she was aware. Her charges were not in sight. She came running from the porch and caught sight of the children just as she reached Ben.

"Don't you dare holler!" said Ben in such a menacing tone that she was frightened into quietness. He pointe i o John just plunging into the water. "I'm going myself and tell their mother and to let her know there ain't no danger." Consequently a little later the moth er came quietly out with Ben to watch the rescue. When John had nearly reached the boat, seeing that the children had not observed him, he determined on having a little fun. Swimming quietly up to the boat, which was now moving sidewise, he dived under and pulled the boat gently out of the little hands, and it vanished from their sight. A cry burst from Ted.

"Sumpsin pulled it:"

"A whale, a whale," cried Jean, and both children burst into tears. Jean pulled Ted down. "It will pull us in, too," she said.

Then, looking around for the first time, they saw themselves out on the broad water alone.

"Mamma, mamma!" whimpered Ted. "Mamma!" shouted Jean.

ing and being pushed toward shore. "The whale is taking us home," said Jean in an awestruck tone. "Will be give us back our boat?"

Immediately they felt the boat turnmoaned Ted. "I'm afraid we've been naughty," sobbed Jean. "We oughtn't to got in the boat nor looked in their closet." "Oh, there's mamma!" she cried a moment later. Then the boat struck the shingle, and the children jumped out into mamma's arms. Out of the water behind the boat came John, shaking his big dripping self, but they did not see him. He put the little hoat on the sand beside the big one and sat down upon the

to the treasure.

"Did you buy the boat with our money?" asked Ted, climbing into the old fellow's lap. "Why, you are all wetted," he cried, jumping away again. "I pulled your boat out of the water," answered John. "Did you kill the whale?" querled

"Never seed any whale," said John;

"but look here, missy; don't climb into old John's boat again unless it's made fast." "I-I'm sorry," said Jean, hanging her head. "Will you take away the boat 'cause we've been naughty?" asked Ted anxiously.

"No, no; the boat is yours." "Don't let 'em know anything about t," he said to their mamma when she ELECTRICAL would have expressed her gratitude. Slipping on his coat and taking his shoes in his hands, he went toward his boat. Ben followed, and then strong, steady strokes soon took them away. The mother turned to the maid, who stood with red eyes. "Oh, ma'am!" she said shamefacedly. "Never mind," answered the mother kindly. "As John would receive no thanks, you shall receive no censure. I am sure you will not let this happen again."

"No, indeed, ma'am." "Now I am going to leave them with you while I go in town to see their

The next morning the children's mother took them to the fishermen loat after Ben and John had gone of with their load. They bore a package with a bold inscription on it, "From Jean and Ted." "Why do we give this to them?"

asked Jean when they were shown the contents of the package. "When any one asks your papa to sell stocks for him, he pays him for doing the work. Wouldn't you like to give Ben and John something?" "Yes, yes!" cried the children, jumping up and down. The package was deposited in the

When the fishermen reached home that day and had pulled the boat up on the beach, John opened the locker. The package met his gaze. "Why, what's this. Ben?" he asked.

"Dash my eyes if I know," said Ben. "'From Jean and Ted,' " read John. The two old salts sat down on the ed Ben. "Just for a little swim." said John.

Walther's Peptonized Port does not exhaust and destroy, but restores, cures and makes new blood.

That is the question hundreds of people are asking. It can not be answered definitely today, but the indications are very favorable and if the good work which was begun yesterday is continued for a few days Newark will be able to claim another big and valuable industry to her already flourishing list of industries.

On the First Day $8,000 Worth of Lots Were Sold - and the people who subscribed for them were among the leading people of the city. Today the Board of Trade committee is again at work and the men are endeavoring to hurry the proposition along as its fate must be decided withni a few days.

Don't Lose Sight of This Fact

Some one of the lot purchasers-it may be you-will be given, free without one cent of additional cost that splendid brick house which stands on the Forry place It is a ten room house in first class condition and is estimated to be easily worth $4,500, with the land which goes with it. It is a prize worth having. If you buy one of the lots that are being sold, this valuable property may be given to you for nothing. Some one of the lot purchasers will get it and it may be yourself.

One of the Most Desirable Sections of the Town.

Remember this property lies "right in town." It adjoins the Moser-Wehrle stove foundry on the south and would have been occupied long ago had it been accessible. The street inder the railway tracks makes the land much nearer the center of the town than other places where lots are selling at higher prices.

Just as soon as the $200,000 steel mill is built

The Value of These Lots Will Largely Increase.

The 300 men to be brought to town will create a demand for more houses and 300 new families will create new business all over the city. These men, remember, get the biggest wages paid to any class of laboring men. The pay roll will be from $20,000 to $25,000 a month.

All money paid for lots is turned over to S. F. VanVoorhis, trustee, who keeps it in his possession till the terms of the contract are fulfilled.

ONLY A FEW DAYS REMAIN to decide whether Newark will get this big industry. Buy one or more lots TODAY. You will by so doing help land this prize and at the same time be making an investment that will bring good returns. Energetic Effort on the part of the people will secure this plant.

Will Soon Carry Mail-Picnic Coming to Idlewilde,

(State Journal.)

The Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction company's line to Newark will soon become a regularly established mail route. Chief Clerk T. S. Bradford of the railway mail service in Columbus some time ago made a trip of inspection over the road, with the view of employing it in carrying mail, and later application was made to headquarters at Washington for a contract for the work.

It was learned Monday from one of the officials of the road that Mr. Bradford had recommended that their contract be accepted and they are now awaiting official notice from Washington. The company expects to take up the work by the first week in August The following towns, which have had but one mail per day and that taken and carried by horse and wagon, under the new regime will receive and send mail twice each day. OUTLOOK FOR OLD DENISON IS VERY BRIGHT, James Williams Kicked by a Horse-A Reception-President Hunt's New House.

Granville, O., July 22-Denison uniersity has been brought more forcibly to the notice of the public during the past year than for some time, perhaps, owing to the accession of her new president, Dr. E. W. Hunt, to ing. the head of this time honored institution, the large increase in her endowment fund, and many other encouraging features that indicate increased prosperity and usefulness for the old college. In this connection it will be gratifying to the friends of the university throughout Ohio and elsewhere to know that the indications are extremely favorable for a greatly increased attendance of students for the coming collegiate year. Letters of inquiry are being constantly received from all over the country in regard to the terms, conditions, etc, of admission to the university, and there is every indication that the attendance will be much larger during the next school year than it has ever been before This is as it should be, for Denison university being the only Baptist college in Chio, and having such an able faculty, large endowment, excellent buildings and fine libraries, the latest and most improved apparatus for teaching the sciences, etc., to say nothing of its large and influential body of graduates scattered throughout the Union, ought to have the largest attendance of any college in the state, unless it be the Ohio State University, and all our people should feel glad that the indications are that Denison will press forward to that

FRANCHISES

WANTED BY ELECTRIC ROAD AND GAS COMPANY. . .

Former Will Spend $100,000 in Re building the System-Licking County Gas in Newark.

At the meeting of the City Council

Monday night, a report of which appears in another column, two ordinances were introduced to grant two new franchises in Newark.

One of these ordinances pertains to the electric street railroad company whose present franchise has several years yet to run. The new owners of the city lines and also the Newark and Granville electric railroad are, as has been announced, the same people! who own the Buckeye Lake line. The company is about to expend about 100,000 in putting the road here in first class condition and before expending that sum the owners desire a new 25 year franchise. The measure was allowed to go over for the second reading.

The other franchise asked for is a new company known as the People's Natural and Artificial Gas Company, the company has an option on Newark Artificial Gas Light and Coke company's plant and which has a considerable interest in the new Licking county gas territory north of Newark. It is proposed, it is said, to have Lick ing county gas in Newark within Ju days after the passage of the franchise. It is understood that the local gas companys' mains will all be tested and where necessary replaced with new pipes before turning in the gas from the Homer field. This measure was allowed to stand for its second reading at the next meeting.

It is said that much cheaper gas will be furnished by the new, com-

New York, July 12-The Journal this morning says that a $400,000,000 railwill be located on the site of the old south of Norfolk is being formed. This combination will embrace roads with an aggregate of more than 20,000 miles of track. The new combination will practically unify the Louisville & Nashville, Southern Illinois Central, Chicago & East Illinois, Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, St. Louis & Southwestern and Evansville & Terre Haute.

Several months must elapse before the final details of this great railroad coup are arranged. If in the meantime the Hill-Morgan plan is indorsed by the highest courts in the land, the Northern Securities company will be accepted as a model for this new corporation. If the decision is not arrived at or is adverse to the mergers of Northern Pacific, a modified plan, warranted to escape legal demolition. will be adopted.

out. When long months had passed, ambition prodded him again. This time he tackled the bike in the back yard, and he did not lose consciousness until he had seen a hundred feet of board fence go down before his onslaught. Then he apparently concluded that the bike was not for him and said no more.

When Mr. Bowser reached home the other evening, there was a look on his face that puzzled Mrs. Bowser. It was a hard, determined, desperate look, the look of a man who had made up his mind to stop the water from pouring over Niagara falls or know the reason why. It was hard to guess whether he had decided to cut off the gas, paint the house a bright yellow or have an aching tooth yanked out. She asked him no questions, and he carried that look all through the dinner hour. Even when his favorite lobster salad came on his face softened not a line, and the cook turned palé and made up her mind that that was her last night in the house. For half an hour after din-

"Durn old Cicero!" exclaimed Mr. Bowser as he stood before her. "If he was willing to be thrown down and HE TACKLES HIS OLD ENEMY, THE do nothing to get even, then he was no man. I reiterate that I will ride a bike or die, and nothing but an earthquake can stop me."

"Well, I know how it will be," sighed Mrs. Bowser. "There are dozens of people sitting out and dozens of boys around. The people will be watching, ready to make fun of you, and the THEN the blke craze became boys will do their best to bring about general, Mr. Bowser went an accident. "It would be too late," he grimly answered, "for there comes the bike." "And you mean to perform?"

"On my life!" "And nothing I can say will stop

"Nothing!"

"Then I will go up to my room and look out of the front window and see the end. Goodby, husband. You have been good to me, and I shall miss you and always remain a widow. I have said all I could, and I can do no more. If death must come to you, I will hope you will break your neck and not have to suffer. Again, goodby!"

Mr. Bowser's face softened for a minute as she turned away, but only for a minute. The cat was left sitting on the front steps, and she wailed out a sad meow, but without even a glance at her he walked out to the curbstone where the boy was holding the bike. A ripple of excitement ran up and down the block. People sauntered down to their gates, and the crowd of boys closed in around Bowser and nudged each other and whispered:

"He'll be flung on his ear!" "He'll break down trees!"

"It will be better than a circus!"

Mr. Bowser turned pale, but that desperate look never left his face. He looked the bike over like a professional, put a little more oil on the wheels and carefully remarked that the tires didn't seem to be fully inflated.

"Goin' out to plow, Mr. Bowser?" queried a lad of cheek. "Is it a new kind of street sweeper?"

asked another. "Why don't some one stop that man from committing suicide?" shrilly demanded a woman across the street. But the remarks had no effect on Mr. Bowser. He took what seemed a last look at his surroundings, drew a deep breath and carelessly threw his leg over the hind wheel and settled in the and one who noticed the twitching of his ears and heard him gritting his teeth might have reasoned that he was planning murder. At last he spoke: "Mrs. Bowser, a boy will be along with a bike soon after dark."

"Yes?" she queried. "It is a bike I have borrowed."

"Yes?"

"It is a bike I am going to ride up and down the street or break my neck in the attempt." "But-but I thought you were through with bikes?" she said. "Not at all. The thing has simply been postponed. Nothing on the face of this earth can ever throw me on my head and escape me. I have been waiting to get my business affairs in good shape before trying again. If 1 perish, you will now be left in comfortable circumstances."

"Has any doctor advised you to ride for your health?"

"No, ma'am. My sole and simple object is to secure revenge. Years and years ago, when the blamed thing kicked up with me and landed me on the back of my neck, I swore a solemn oath that I would never give up. Every time I have been thrown I have renewed that oath. My name is Bowser.

I am a man who never lets go." "And you are going to try it again this evening?"

"I am, within an hour."

"It is foolish of you," she continued. "You may get a broken leg or something to lay you up for weeks. And even if you don't what have you gained? No one thinks it any great thing to ride a bike. Suppose Cicero had fooled his time away with a bike, what would he have amounted to in down to the corner and turned about and rode the length of the block, and this he repeated fourteen times before he drew up at his own curbstone and dismounted. His wheel had scarcely wabbled during the whole time. He had come off with dignity and victory. He had met the enemy, and the enemy was his. Mrs. Bowser came down to welcome him, the boys cheered, and the adults clapped their hands, and as he ascended the steps he carelessly and indifferently observed:

"Thank you, Mrs. Bowser. Yes, I enjoyed my little spin very much in-

And Mrs. Bowser shed tears and couldn't say a word, and the cat looked solemn and wondered if all the legends of that house were to be overturned.

A LETTER FROM MARK WIN-CHESTER.

The sporting writer of the Advocate received a very kindly letter this morning from Mark Winchester, captain of this years' Denison University baseball team, who is now in Washington D. C., in which he expresses his and the teams' high appreciation of this paper's reports of the games played by Denison at Granville this year.

He says in part:

"The accounts, when unfavorable, always contained good suggestions, which stirred us up to improve the features of play wherein we were weak; when favorable they had a tremendous effect in encouraging and putting snap into the whole team."

Captain Winchester's kind words are highly appreciated. He is eas:'y one of the very best players that ever represented Denison, and more than all this he is a courteous, affable gentleman, to whom the writer is under obligations for information and knidly treatment.

A RESTORATION BEAU.

Daily Programme of a Dandy In England During Charles' Time.

The history of an ordinary day of a restoration beau was something like this: From about 10 till 12 he received visitors in his sleeping chamber, where he lay in state, with his periwig, thickly powdered, lying beside him on the coverlet. Near at hand, on his dressing table, the curious visitor might have noticed some little volumes of amatory verse, a canister of Lisbon or Spanish snuff, a smelling bottle and perhaps a few fashionable trinkets.

As soon as he deemed proper the beau arose and with incredible difficulty proceeded to put on all his charms, to perfume his garments, to soak his hands in washes for the sake of producing whiteness and delicacy, to tinge his cheeks with carminative Aside from a belief that Jeffries in order to give them that gentle blush which nature had denied them. to arrange a number of patches upon his face so as to produce the effect of moles and dimples, to dip his pocket handkerchief in rosewater and to powder his linen so as to banish from it the smell of soap, to consume a quarter of an hour in the attempt to fasten his cravat, so long again in the endeavor to adjust his wig and to "cock" his hat, as long again in the contemplation of his charms in the looking glass and as long again in the practice of such smiles as would display to the best advantage the ivory whiteness of his teeth-these were the processes through which he who desired to figure as a beau of the first magnitude was compelled in that are to pass.

The character of the beau, so far as his outward and personal appearance was concerned, was now complete, and as in those days fashionable gentlemen used their legs to a much less extent than they do now our imaginary beau would have directed his valet to order a sedan chair without delay. Into this he stepped and was borne to the fashionable haunt-to the mall in St. James park or perhaps to the more ceremonious parade in Hyde parkwhere, like a butterfly, he delighted to flutter in the train of some jilting beauty, who gloried in nothing so much as "an equipage of fools" and who was perfectly willing for the nonce to furnish him with an excuse for toasting her in a tavern at night.-Gentleman's Magazine.

ADVOGATE Guessing Gontest!

Great interest has been aroused in the Advocate's Guessing Contest as is evidenced by the many guesses that are daily received on the blank coupons clipped from copies of the Advocate.

Many people are guessing two or three times. One may guess as often as he wishes, providing each guess is accompanied by payment for five weeks' subscription to the paper.

REMEMBER, $200.00

Has been deposited by the Advocate for free distribution among readers of this paper who make the best guesses on the actual population of Newark on June 1, 1902. The one who makes the best guess will be given $50, second $25, third $20, fourth $15, fifth $10, to the next five nearest $5 each, to the next ten nearest $2.50 each, and to the next fifteen nearest $2 each.

THIRTY-FIVE GASH PRIZES

Aggregating $200, given free to Advocate readers, who are required only to pay the sum they may owe for back subscription and five weeks in advance for the paper.

In case of a tie prizes will be divided equally.

Guess as often as you wish. For every 50 cents paid on advance subscription to the Daily Advocate you may have one guess.

In 1890 Newark had 14,289 people and in 1900 the official census was 18,157. What is the population June 1, 1902? The census is being carefully and accurately taken by experienced men. No person in the Advocate's employ knows anything about the census returns and no employe is permitted to enter the contest.
